■ SLEEPER PICKS — Value Under the Radar

◆ Takefusa Kubo (Japan)

Creative midfielder in a Japan team that overperforms expectations. Low draft cost, high ceiling.

◆ Abde Ezzalzouli (Morocco)

Morocco's explosive winger — if they replicate 2022's run, he'll rack up assists at low ownership.

◆ Khvicha Kvaratskhelia (Georgia?/not qualified yet)

Monitor squad — if a dark horse team qualifies, their main creator is always value.

◆ Giacomo Raspadori (Italy)

Poacher in Italy's tight tactical system. Often scores from limited chances.

◆ Julian Alvarez (Argentina)

Messi's understudy but a prolific finisher himself — often ignored in drafts for the big names.

◆ Ibrahim Traoré (Burkina Faso / Pan-African)

If any African qualifier has a surprise run, their key attacker will be massively underowned.

■ AVOID LIST — Hyped But Risky

X Neymar Jr. (Brazil)

Injury history at tournaments. Brazilian system doesn't depend on him now. Overpriced.

X Cristiano Ronaldo (Portugal)

At 41+, Portugal plays around younger talent. Starts uncertain.

X Lionel Messi (Argentina)

May not be active or fully fit. Historical legend but WC 2022 peak may be past.

X Any GK from a weak nation

Fantasy GK points come from saves + clean sheets. Weak team = high shots faced but few wins.

X Late injury news players

Always monitor 24 hours before draft — avoid those with muscle/fitness doubts.
